FEDERAL LAWSUIT ALLEGING LABOR TRAFFICKING AND WAGE THEFT SET FOR SEPT. 25

By Steve Middendorp
Courts Reporter

TELLURIDE-A federal lawsuit filed in February that alleges labor trafficking and wage theft at a Telluride luxury hotel has set a date of Sept. 25 at 11:30 AM for a settlement conference. The lawsuit names the Madeline Hotel, Telluride Resort Partners, Mountain Premier Cleaning, and Adriana Santa Ana as the defendants in the case. The settlement conference will take place in the Alfred A. Araj courtroom in Denver before Judge Michael Hegarty.

The complaint names plaintiffs Karina Ruiz Alvarez, Karla Gonzalez Velez, Gabriela Moctezuma Castillo, and Amelia Colon Chairez as housekeepers who were hired by Santa Ana and Mountain Premier Cleaning. This is a class action lawsuit in which these four plaintiffs and the lawyers will be representing other housekeepers hired under similar

RED HAWKS FOOTBALL CRUSHES FRUITA-MONUMENT 58-15

By Cliff Dodge

MONTROSE-Friday night proved to be a hot time in the old town as the Montrose Red Hawks football team scored a touchdown on their first possession and dominated Fruita-Monument 58-15 to even their record to 1-1

The Red Hawks' Austin Zimmer took the opening kickoff and raced 70 yards to the Wildcats 25 yard line. The Red Hawks Blake Griffin capped a 4-play drive as he scored from the 5 yard line to set the tone for the evening.

The Red Hawks turned their running game loose as a host of running backs totaled over 400 yards on the ground. Senior Blake Griffin and Sophomore Elijah Womack did the bulk of the scoring for the Red Hawks. The Red Hawk offense controlled the clock as the offense put together four drives of at least 10 plays.

The Montrose offense was very effective and scored on all eight of their possessions. The Red Hawks did not turn the ball over and never had to punt in the contest.

The Red Hawk defense dominated the Wildcats giving up only two touchdowns and 241 yards of total offense. The defensive front seven handled the Fruita-Monument running game and forced the Wildcats to punt five times. The defense also forced the Wildcats to turn the ball over on downs twice.

The Red Hawks, seemingly mindful of the difficult one point loss to Palmer Ridge last week, attempted two point conversions on a majority of their touchdown drives and were successful on most of the attempts.

Next up for the Red Hawks is a home contest featuring the Erie Tigers on Friday, Sept. 8. The kickoff is scheduled for 7 p.m.

BLM SEEKS PUBLIC INPUT ON NEW PLAN FOR RECREATION MANAGEMENT

Special to the Mirror

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The Bureau of Land Management is welcoming public input on a plan to inform recreation management on America’s public lands. The new Blueprint for 21st Century Outdoor Recreation will guide Bureau decisions to proactively meet modern demands for exceptional and unique outdoor experiences, complementing the significant public land investments in President Biden’s Investing in America agenda.

“BLM hosted more than 81 million visitors on our public lands last fiscal year – a 40 percent increase since 2012. We are thrilled at this trend, but also recognize that more guests means a need for varied and diverse response strategies,” said

BLM Director Tracy Stone-Manning. “The Blueprint aims to help BLM meet the growing demand for exceptional recreation experiences on our public lands.”

Managing for recreational opportunities is a core tenet of BLM’s multiple use mandate and aligns with BLM’s mission to sustain the health, diversity and productivity of public lands for the use and enjoyment of present and future generations. The increasing demand for recreational activities on public lands has provided a critical window of opportunity to advance a transformational shift in recreation management. This Blueprint will help BLM prioritize recreation investment and staffing appropriate for current and future needs.

BLM is seeking input from partners and the public, including in-person and virtual recreation Blueprint roundtables hosted by the Foundation for America’s Public Lands.

Together, BLM and its partners will implement a strategy to guide the agency in providing the resources and experiences that visitors to public lands expect in the 21st century.

The Blueprint is not a formal management plan but rather a strategic document to guide the agency’s work. The full text of the Blueprint and associated fact sheet are available on our Recreation Strategy webpage. The Bureau welcomes feedback on how BLM can best implement the Blueprint. To do so, please email blm_recreation_feedback@blm.gov.

BLM TRES RIOS FIELD OFFICE LIFTS STAGE 1 FIRE RESTRICTIONS

Special to the Mirror

DOLORIS— Stage 1 Fire Prevention Order COS01-23-02 has been rescinded on public lands managed by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) in the Tres Rios Field Office and Canyons of the Ancients National Monument effective 12:01 a.m. on Thursday, August 31, 2023. “Recent rains over much of the region have lessened, but not eliminated, the danger from fire, allowing restrictions to be lifted. The public is advised to be cautious with activities that could potentially ignite a fire,” said Southwest District Assistant Fire Management Officer Rusty Stark. Annual Fire Prevention Order COS01-23-01 for the Durango Special Recreation Management Area, which implements fire restrictions within the Durango city limits, La Plata County, Colorado—including BLM lands in the Grandview, Animas City Mountain, and Skyline areas—will remain in effect until rescinded. “These areas adjacent to City of Durango are ‘Day Use Only,’ and overnight camping and campfires are prohibited to reduce fire risk,” said Derek Padilla, Tres Rios Field Manager. “We encourage the public to respect the land by recreating responsibly using ‘Leave No Trace’ practices and preventing wildfires while enjoying their public lands.” Fire officials remind visitors to practice these principles of outdoor fire safety:

- Clear all flammable material within three feet of campfire rings.
- Make a fire only if you have enough water and a shovel to put it out.
- Never leave a fire unattended and keep fires small and manageable.
- Extinguish fires completely. If it is too hot to touch, it is too hot to leave.

- Avoid parking or idle vehicles in tall dry grass; the heat from the vehicle can spark a wildfire.
- Secure chains from vehicles or towed trailers so they do not drag and cause a wildfire.
- Fireworks are never allowed on federally managed lands. For more information on fire restrictions, visit <https://www.blm.gov/programs/public-safety-and-fire/fire-and-aviation/regional-information/colorado/southwest-district> or <https://westslopefireinfo.com/>. FEDERAL LAWSUIT ALLEGING LABOR TRAFFICKING AND WAGE THEFT SET FOR SEPT. 25 From pg 1 circumstances by MPC. The housekeepers were brought from Mexico on H-2B guest-worker visas, a program that allows certain employers to bring foreign nationals into the United States for non-agricultural jobs.

The plaintiffs allege that they were provided poor work conditions without breaks. They were not paid the minimum requirement for all hours worked including overtime. Paychecks were deducted without the knowledge or approval of the employees. They were not reimbursed for their travel and visa expenses as required by the H-2B visa program.

The employees allegedly were required to stay in employee housing and were not informed that this housing was two hours away from the Madeline Hotel. Each employee had to pay 10-15 dollars per day to cover the travel expenses. Since the distance was so far away, there was no way for the employees to find alternative transportation from their housing to the hotel for work. The suit alleges that employees often had to wait on the premises for four hours before their work shifts began. The plaintiffs and employees were not reimbursed for this time.

Plaintiff Gabriela Moctezuma Castillo spoke about the alleged abuse in a Feb. 8 press release from Towards Justice. "It was difficult working at the Madeline Hotel," said Castillo. "We had to travel hours for work each day and even had to pay for the daily ride to get to our shifts. I feel like the hotel took advantage of us because they knew we needed the money but they did not do much to make sure we were being paid correctly."

In addition to these allegations, the plaintiffs allege that Adriana Santa Ana threatened employees with termination and deportation in response to complaints about work conditions or not receiving their overtime pay. This involved the confiscation of Ruiz Alvarez's social security card and Santa Ana allegedly held the card even after the separation of employment. The suit states that Alvarez was unable to freely travel and this constitutes trafficking of a person.

The April 21 response from the lawyers for Madeline Hotel, Telluride Resort Partners, Mountain Premier Cleaning and Adriana Santa Ana states a complete denial of all allegations in the suit. Many of the responses state "Defendant is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations." It is stated in the suit that the claims of trafficking and intimidation apply only to Adriana Santa Ana and MPC. The Madeline Hotel allegedly was aware of the under compensation of contracted employees.

According to public property information, Adriana Santa Ana had ownership of six properties in Montrose, CO. On April 24, she transferred four of those properties into the name of Briana Santa Ana. On the same day, Briana Santa Ana purchased a home in Forney, TX. Adriana Santa Ana lives in Telluride and was granted a request to call into court for the hearing on July 24, because the case was in Denver. The request mentioned that the defendant Santa Ana had other hearings on the same date in San Miguel County. Social media posts indicate Santa Ana was vacationing in Mexico and visiting with family in Forney, TX on and after this date.

On June 21, Adriana Santa Ana added attorneys John K. Crisham and Peter Ricciardelli to her defense team. Peter Ricciardelli is a prominent attorney on the western slope for defendants in the 7th Judicial District, despite being publicly censured On April 22, 2022 by a disciplinary judge for unethical handling of a client's funds.

The Madeline Hotel is a luxury hotel in which the cheapest rooms available are more than $600 per night. Some of the rooms that are bookable on the hotel's website cost more than $1,000 per night. On the website for the hotel, housekeeping opportunities are listed as starting at $17 per hour.

Towards Justice is a non-profit group dedicated to the pursuit of economic justice for vulnerable communities. The Executive Director, David Seligman, said "It would be concerning to see attempts to ignore obligations under the wage law and hide behind purported poverty. The Madeline Hotel is responsible for the underpayment of wages.

The Madeline Hotel, we allege, profited from the underpayment of wages. It's really critical that we not allow large, deep-pocketed employers to hide behind the middleman." The middleman in this case is Adriana Santa Ana and her LLC, Mountain Premier Cleaning, who had hired the housekeepers directly to have them work in the Madeline Hotel.

According to Seligman, labor exploitation is more common in tourist areas and Towards Justice has noticed an increase in these kinds of cases on the Western Slope, especially in the mountains.

"The backbone of our tourism industry across the west and in particular in Colorado is labor, and very often immigrant labor," Seligman said. "Sadly, those workers have not been able to achieve the bargaining power that they deserve and they merit in light of their importance to some of our very profitable industries and sectors."

"I think that's particularly a problem in the mountains, especially where workers can't afford a place to live," Seligman continued. "They end up being incredibly reliant on employers for employer provided housing. That is a ton of vulnerability. That can create a structural problem and undermine bargaining power across the board."

The next hearing on this case is Sept. 25. This falls under federal jurisdiction if criminal charges were to take place, because the housekeepers were brought in from Mexico on H-2B visas.

When I reached out to the United States District Attorney for the Colorado district, they declined to comment on whether criminal charges may be possible in this case.

YOUR BRAIN ON NATURE – BEAUTY AND THE BRAIN

By Lauren Hall Ruddell, Ph.D.

Greetings Mirrorites!

I recently binged on the TV series ‘Suits’. I found most of the characters quite unlikable. Occasionally I would try to see them as multi-faceted individuals with good and bad qualities. But my efforts to do so were often scuttled by one thing. Was it the dialogue, their haircuts, their suits? No it was actually the artwork displayed in their offices. I found its random color and geometrical nonsense both distracting and angering. I really, really hated it, and it made me want to hate the characters.

I assumed that this was the way most people are affected by ‘modern art’. Turns out that I was wrong. They are affected negatively, to be sure, but they don’t tend to get as riled as I do. Further investigation led me to discover that beauty may not be in the eye of the beholder after all.

Brain scans indicate that aesthetic appeal is not housed in the expected regions of visual cortex. It seems that judgments of beauty involve a local transformation from a feature-based visual representation to a representation of “elemental affect,” computed through information-processing mechanisms that detect deviations from an observer’s expectations. Aesthetically appealing interactions with natural landscapes may rely more heavily on comparisons between ongoing stimulation and well-formed representations of the natural world. Researchers have been surprised to find that although subcortical reward structures are involved, not much happens in the default-mode network (DMN), an important cerebral process associated with the brain benefits of time in pleasing landscapes. I find it quite shocking that perceptions of natural beauty are a bottom-up process, originating in the more primitive parts of the brain and being less higher-level cognitions than once believed.

Some researchers believe that beautiful nature is a form of positive distraction. Positive distraction refers to an element of the environment that produces positive feeling and holds attention effortlessly, much as is the case with soft fascination (talked about in earlier articles). This diverts attention away from negative stimuli and experiences. Nature is effective as a positive distraction because it is stimulating, and evokes interest, and improves mood. Weirdly, in some ways, the human brain finds coherent, pleasant nature scenes more stimulating than ‘modern art.’

We know that realistic depictions of pleasing nature can reduce anxiety and depression, improve mood, and induce relaxation. My own research at the University of Utah confirmed mood improvement and relaxation response. Other studies have confirmed the distraction angle. For instance, a recent study compared physical response to beautiful nature as opposed to scrambled images.

Scrambled images used were edited versions of artworks that had been Photoshopped into chaos.

It was hypothesized that viewing nature artworks after a laboratory stressor would lead to improved stress recovery, as measured by decreased salivary cortisol, fatigue, and drowsiness, while improving mood and increasing pupil size compared to the scrambled condition. They found that the participants subjected to the scrambled images did experience low arousal, negative affect (feeling dull and unhappy) and drowsiness. While viewing scrambled images, average pupil size was similar to when participants viewed a uniform gray screen, and smaller than when viewing landscapes. Nature viewer’s pupils dilated after only 3 seconds and stayed consistently higher than the poor scrambled guys. They reported greater alertness and better mood. So it would seem that two of the seven dwarves, Sleepy and Grumpy, were created by the scrambled condition.

OK, maybe my response to the characters of ‘Suits’ was a result of going into Grumpy mode. Not so odd and shocking after all. So who cares and what good does knowing this do for us?

A group of 200 plus folks watched a slideshow of fifteen photos of natural

natural scenes/elements. The beauty of the slideshow images was manipulated by presenting either aesthetically attractive nature images (beautiful condition) or destroying the beauty through pixilation of the images. A simple button clicking task was required after the presentation was concluded. The participants who had watched beautiful nature, clicked more buttons, and also reported feeling more motivated to click buttons compared to participants who had watched relatively unappealing pixelated nature images. So it appears that viewing beautiful nature scenes is both pleasantly stimulating and job performance motivating.

An Australian bunch found similar results. University of Melbourne researchers gave 150 participants a menial task that involved hitting specific keystrokes when certain numbers flashed on a computer screen. After five minutes, the subjects were given a 40-second break, and an image of a rooftop surrounded by tall buildings appeared on their screens. Half the subjects saw a plain concrete roof; the others saw a roof covered with a green, flowering meadow. Both groups then resumed the task. After the break, concentration levels fell by 8% among the people who saw the concrete roof, and their performance faltered. But among those who saw the green roof, concentration levels rose by 6% and performance held steady.

One of the most scenic times of the year in these parts is nearly upon us. So whether you need a distraction from something unpleasant, or want to improve your work performance to impress your boss, get outside daily to gaze upon the stunning visual display that nature graces us with every fall.

OPINION/EDITORIAL: LETTERS

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE NO LONGER INTERESTED IN JUSTICE

Editor:

The same day he was arrested by the failing Soviet regime, Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn wrote this about the USSR: "We know that they are lying, they know that they are lying, they even know that we know they are lying, we also know that they know we know they are lying, but they are still lying." What Solzhenitsyn wrote about the Soviet Union in 1974 could truthfully be written about Biden's America in 2023.

It's not some big mystery. The Biden family, including father "Robert Peters," sold access and took tens of millions of dollars in bribes from corrupt oligarchs in Russia, Kazakhstan, Ukraine, and China. In exchange for making him and his family filthy rich, Biden used his political power to reward our enemies at the expense of the strategic interests of this nation. His blatant influence-peddling included the use of pseudonyms ("Robert Peters", "Robin Ware", etc.) and a complex network of shell companies to hide the payments. The Bidens are corrupt, and other than a few individuals who refuse to accept the truth, the vast majority of Americans know it.

The multiple indictments against Trump are a continuation of the deceitful seven-year effort by Democrats to annihilate their chief political opponent. Before Trump's election, Hillary manufactured false claims about Trump conspiring with Russia to steal the 2016 election. When that sham was exposed, they immediately impeached him for asking Ukraine to look into the Biden family's influence-peddling schemes. It's OK for Biden to commit treason, but not OK for Trump to ask about it. They set aside every House rule and legal process to rush to impeach him again after the January 6th demonstrations. The hypocrisy is beyond belief. The party that is now indicting Trump for the thought crime of questioning the integrity of the highly irregular 2020 election spent years and vast government resources to undo the results of the 2016 election.

Local DA's and the DOJ manufactured "crimes" in four different venues. Crimes like: *Securely storing material he had authority to declassify. (Biden removed material he didn't have authority to declassify and kept it in an unsecured garage). *Asking for an investigation into an election more than half the country believes should have been investigated.

*Instigating an "insurrection" in which no one was armed and none of the protesters could even remotely be charged with anything close to insurrection. The administration, the DOJ, and their media allies pretend to take all this with deadly seriousness even though the entire country, including the perpetrators themselves, know it is a total staged joke and a farcical subversion of justice.

Trump is an obstacle to the Deep State that seeks total power. He has shown how false, how hollow, how corrupt, and how destructive their agenda is. The entire charade is to destroy the Trump '24 campaign, stifle any other conservatives willing to run for President, and terrorize anyone else willing to resist the Democrat's agenda.

This whole fairy tale is making Trump-hating liberals feel a lot better. They are too blinded to see that the indictments are less an attack against one man than a banana republic-like attempt to enforce group-think on anyone who dares resist federal dictates.

Today, Democrats are blatantly using the criminal justice system to protect Biden and destroy Trump. Tomorrow, you and I will be able to think whatever we want, but we will no longer be able to express those thoughts if they dispute the official narrative.

Democrats think that if they repeat a lie over and over again, it becomes a kind of truth. They are right in that a segment of our population believe the lies simply because they hear them over and over again --- as evidenced by a number of letter writers in our local papers who point to the indictments as proof that Trump is a criminal. What the Left doesn't understand is that a much larger segment of the population can actually think and see through the lies and subterfuge --- despite what we are told again and again.

That segment understands abuse of power and treason when they see it. They see beyond the propaganda and understand that the Department of Justice is no longer interested in justice but is defending corrupt elites that only Trump dares to challenge.

SHORT ROAD STIRS LONG DEBATE

By Bob Cox

REGIONAL-What started as little more than a trail used by early travelers, became a war of words among town and county officials beginning in 1912.

The Black Mesa Road, now Colorado Highway 92, was first developed in 1912 by officials in Gunnison County in cooperation with Delta County. By May of 1913, the two counties began planning a celebration of the road's completion. The Gunnison News-Champion displayed a bold headline in the May 23, 1913 edition: BLACK MESA ROAD WILL BE READY FOR USE BY JULY 4. The article, in part, declared that the road would be finished, 'before any other route has been fairly begun, and will become the favorite route...' The paper announced that a celebration of the completion of the road would be held on top of Black Mesa on July 4, 1913 for the people from Gunnison and Delta Counties. The emphasis on the road was directed at the owners of automobiles in the two counties. Gunnison County Commissioner W. A. Gillaspay was quoted in both Gunnison and Montrose newspapers as saying that the road would be passable by that time, but not completed.

Meanwhile, The Town of Montrose was advocating for the completion of the road over Blue Mesa, and was openly disappointed in the focus on the Black Mesa Road. Montrose town officials feared that the completion of the Black Mesa Road would effectively route new settlers away from Montrose and direct them into Delta County. The Austin Journal editor opined the following:

The Town of Montrose is not all of Montrose County. The people south of Crawford in that county pay taxes and are entitled to road money. That part of Black Mesa Road was built by private subscriptions, mostly by Delta people and the amount received from the state is a small matter compared to the amount received for the Blue Mesa Road. However, the Black Mesa Road is built and will be traveled after the Blue Mesa Road is built. Since Delta County people had to pay bills which Montrose County people ought to have paid, it is natural that Delta feels more kindly toward the Black Mesa Road.

The debate continued for more than ten years. The road was built, but in such a way as to discourage winter travel. Montrose officials remained concerned that improvements to the road could lead to fewer people traveling to Montrose from the east. Late in 1922, the state highway department released an engineer's report documenting the proposed improvement of the Black Mesa Road. Part of the engineer's report was printed in the December 27, 1922 edition of The Montrose Daily Press:

On a route traveled by the first settlers, the Black Mesa Road was started in 1912. In 1913, the (Gunnison County) commissioners drove over it and said the road was as good as it could be, and a celebration should be held soon. Here in the 1920s, Roy Cotten grades the road at White Point with a team of horses. Ed Bates is the "blade man." Photo courtesy of the Hotchkiss-Crawford Historical Museum.

The present road across Black Mesa from Sapinero to the North Fork of the Gunnison River at Hotchkiss is very poorly located and poorly built, and was originally intended to serve the saw mills and the tie cutters on the top of the mesa, and in order to serve these industries, they had to climb to an altitude which makes this road impassable in the late fall and early spring on account of the snow conditions. The most accessible passes and the ones that are open the latest in the fall and the first opened in the spring lie at the head of the route between the eastern and western parts of the state.

The report went on to address the expense of clearing the roads, both over Black Mesa and Blue Mesa, and recommended that the Black Mesa Road be improved by lowering the route to take advantage of the southern facing hills, which would aid in the earlier opening of the road.

Barely a month after the engineer's report appeared, the friction between Montrose, Delta and Mesa Counties began to heat up once more. On January 29, 1923, the Montrose Daily Press printed an editorialized article pointing out that people of Delta and Mesa Counties, particularly the Lions Clubs of those counties, were advocating for a road that would be a detriment to travel to Montrose. In part, the article read:

Quite a bit has been stated of late about the Black Mesa Road proposition. It has been intimated that one reason why the Rainbow Route was to be torn up next summer with a steam shovel was to divert tourist travel over the Black Mesa and once it was diverted that way, the Rainbow Route thru Montrose would suffer.

About the same time the Delta Independent voiced their opinion that the Black Mesa Road should be improved. This is part of what the Independent printed: Mr. Vandemoer of the State Highway Department told of how the Black Mesa Road, in his opinion, could be made to serve the people of western Colorado several months more each year. In fact, he said it was shown that Black Mesa and Cochetopa pass were particularly suited to later travel as well as accessible much earlier than any of the other routes to this part of the state. With the expenditure of about $175,000 and the building of about 15 miles of road on the Black Mesa this could be accomplished. The Gunnison commissioners, he said, favored the Black Mesa and already the engineers have recommended this route to be taken this fall. As the fall of 1923 began, the attention to the Black Mesa Road once again dominated the headlines in the September issues of the Delta Independent. In the September 28, edition, the headline announced: PRELIMINARY WORK UNDER WAY ON BLACK MESA ROAD.

The article contained more than 1,000 words and began with a descriptive paragraph: The people of the Western Slope as well as the people of the Eastern Slope and all other people interested in early spring and late fall travel across the mountains of Colorado, will be pleased to know that at last their efforts to have a road built around the point of Black Mesa and along the rim of Black Canyon are beginning to bear fruit, which fact was evidenced by the presence in Crawford last week of Messrs. A. E. Palen and George F. Helliso. These two gentlemen are in the service of The U. S. Bureau of Public Roads and their business in Crawford last week was to go over the proposed Black Mesa Road for the purpose of selecting camp sites for the surveying crew that moved in on the 11th inst., to begin work. This corps of surveyors consists of 12 men and they will make the survey from Crystal Creek to Currecanti Creek.

The article ended with the eloquence of a romance novel: U. S. Bureau of Public Roads and Forest Departments all gather at some point along the road where flows a crystal spring and where the leaves as they are stirred by the mountain breeze sing songs just as they sang in the long ago when the pioneers were coming into this western country, and at this place in the presence of the charm of the golden rod, and the stately Columbine, and all other mountain flowers. Dedicate the road to the memory of those dauntless, fearless, pioneer men and women who discovered for all of us, the Western Slope, and by their willingness to endure the hardships incident to the life of all pioneers, made it possible for all Western Slope citizens to enjoy the blessings of a land where the snow-capped mountains and the lofty pines kiss the sky; where the sun shines a little brighter and the snow is a trifle whiter; land of good health and promise; land of fertile soil; land of our HOME beloved Colorado, the most glorious section of all the world.

Three years later, the road had been significantly improved and the supporters of the road held a picnic at Corral Gulch. The people of Montrose were still being disparaged due to the perceived lack of support, both monetarily and philosophically. But the road was still not finished.

Two years later, on August 9, 1928, the delay was explained somewhat when the Surface Creek Champion displayed the following:

BLACK MESA ROAD UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Another forward step involving the transportation problem of the Western Slope was taken this week when work was started on the building of a new road east and west across Black Mesa. Up until the present time there has been a great deal of contention as to which was the most important of the two road projects under consideration, the Black Mesa Road and the McClure Pass. But now it is a certainty that work on completion of the work on Blue Mesa to a location on Black Mesa and road building was started Tuesday of this week. This is in accordance with an agreement made and signed in Pueblo a number of years ago. At that time the interest centered between Blue Mesa and Black Mesa and after considerable wrangling it was decided to construct the Blue Mesa Road first and then the Black Mesa Road. The State Highway officials are only fulfilling a promise and those who have been opposing the construction of this road should now cast aside their petty jealousies and work for the completion of the project...

Today, a certain amount of irony exists in that a major road construction project on the Blue Mesa route is sending a significant number of travelers and commercial transportation vehicles over the Black Mesa Road (Colorado Highway 92) into the North Fork Valley.

Author's note: Historical research can be daunting. In this case the Hotchkiss-Crawford Historical Museum volunteers were of great help. Visit the museum in Hotchkiss if ever you find yourself in the area.

CAREGIVER SUMMIT AIMS TO EASE 'THE HARDEST JOB' Free Symposium Set for October 6

Special to the Mirror

MONTROSE-Every year thousands of individuals have their lives hijacked by the diagnosis of a loved one as a victim of a brain disease like Alzheimer's or Parkinson's. From that moment on, a son, daughter, wife, husband, or other relative becomes a family-caregiver. The mantle is one they wear out of pure love, but it is one of the hardest things they will ever do.

Family caregivers have always been in service, working mostly in isolation and with no instruction manual by which to execute their myriad tasks. Times have changed, thankfully, and organizations such as Region 10 Area Agency on Aging and Caregiver Support Foundation have stepped up to provide support, care for caregivers, so to speak. This year, on Oct. 6 the Family Caregiver Summit will be staged to offer education and emotional support for caregivers in Western Colorado.

This free event will be at the Montrose Pavilion from 1 to 4:30 PM. Caregivers will be in a safe and relaxed atmosphere where they can listen to informative speakers, visit with other caregivers, and interact with vendors who provide resources to help them with their tasks.

The first major trauma that will be experienced by a new caregiver is hearing a doctor deliver the diagnosis of progressive neurological disorder. While the patient's loved ones may have suspected what was happening, that instant is the entrance to a tunnel with no light at the other end.

Dr. Michael Hehmann of Montrose has diagnosed hundreds of Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, and other brain diseases. Hehmann, a neurology specialist for 35 years, will be one of three speakers interfacing with caregivers at the Summit. He will provide insight into the diagnosis and what the caregiver can expect over time. Hehmann will have some thoughts of value for both rookie caregivers and those who have the abrasions brought on by extended duty as a caregiver.

The doctor will get down to the basics. "I will be doing a deep review of the diagnosis and treatment of progressive neurologic disease and how it affects the brain and the rest of the body," he said. For those new to the neurological disorder scene, Dr. Hehmann will explain the neurologic exam and what is done in your physician's office for exploring how the brain and memory works and the different testing available for dementia and Parkinson's.

With research on diagnosis and treatment continuing on a minute-by-minute basis, Dr. Hehmann said he also will discuss some of the new diagnosis methods for Alzheimer's, as well as what will be available in the future.

"There are new medications and treatments available, and we'll talk about some of those," Hehmann said.

"We will also attempt to review what is now available for testing. For example, we do CAT and MRI scans," he said. "But we will explore newer procedures that are on the forefront especially the treatment of Alzheimer's, using the newer monoclonal antibody treatments against amyloid pep-tides."

Hehmann said that there are challenges in the medical community in Montrose. "The health system overall has challenges, including the availability of enough providers. That impacts the care available for our families and friends in Western Colorado."

Doctor Hehmann, as well as the other speakers, will be available for questions from the summit attendees after his discourse. Laird Landon, Chair of the Caregivers Support Foundation and Sandy Walker of Region 10's Area Agency on Aging will be the other speakers.

While the Family Caregivers Summit is being staged by the Caregiver Support Foundation and Region 10, it is supported by a number of sponsors who have contributed monies to defray the expenses of the event.

That list includes, Hope West, Volunteers of America, Touch of Care, The Beacon, Four Season's Investment Advisors, US Bank, ElderAdo Financial, Copy Cats, ASEDD, Alpine Bank, Colorow, Cedar Point Health, Montrose Regional Health, Timberline Bank, the David Mize Family, Sinner Family, Ciel Bottomly, In Memory of Ellen Smith, James Jennings Family, Donald Sorenson Family.

MONTROSE RED HAWKS SPORTS ROUNDUP

Volleyball vs Palisade:

A tall and talented Palisade Bulldogs team invaded the McMillian Fieldhouse on August 29th and handed the Red Hawks their second defeat in the young volleyball season 3-1.

The first match was very close. The Red Hawks led early on but were caught by the Bulldogs 11 to 11. The two teams traded blows down the stretch until the Bulldogs broke an 18-18 tie and closed out the first match 25-20.

The second match mirrored the first with both teams staying close until the Bulldogs led by 8 points at 21 to 13. The Red Hawks fought back and closed to a 2-point margin 24 to 22. The Bulldogs then scored the 25th and final point to lead 2-0.

The Red Hawks turned up the offense in the third match and jumped out to a slim lead and then expanded their advantage at the mid-point in the contest. The home team then pulled ahead and put away the Bulldogs 25 to 18 to cut the lead to 2-1.

The Bulldogs scored the first 2 points in the fourth match and were never headed as they stretched the lead 16-5 midway through the contest. The Red Hawks rally fell short and Palisade won the fourth game by the score of 25-14.

Head Coach Shane Forrest of the Red Hawks said, "We knew it was going to be a really good match. I am proud of our kids, they played hard the whole time. This team had lots of size. They spike a lot from both the middle and the outside.

We blocked well but could not overcome their speed and power."

Forrest continued, "I was very proud of our kids in the fourth match. They did not give up, they hustled, chased balls down into the bleachers and won the match. We just could not stay with them in the fourth and decisive match."

Montrose Red Hawks Softball vs Rifle/ Palisade

The Rifle Bears paid a visit to Montrose and escaped with two wins as they swept a doubleheader by the scores of 14-8 and 11-10, dropping the Red Hawks season record to 1 win, 3 losses and 1 tie, and 1-1 in league action. The two wins increased the Rifle season record to 4-1 overall and 1-1 in league action.

The Red Hawks jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning of game one. The Bears scored 7 runs in their half of the second inning and were never headed. The visitors added 5 runs in the 5th inning and 2 more in the seventh. The only excitement came in the fifth inning when Andie Blowers and Abby English stroked back-to-back home runs over the left center field fence.

The second game of the twin bill started in similar fashion to the first game with the Red Hawks scoring five time in the bottom of the first inning. The Bears then plated 9 runs over the next four innings and led 11-7 after five innings.

Red Hawks head coach Casey Killins described what occurred in her own words. "We were up 6-1 after the first couple of innings but Rifle snuck back into the game in the middle innings. We made a comeback in the 6th but, one of many good plays by the Rifle team took out our tying runner trying to score from second base, and we ended up losing 11 to 10."

The third game in two days saw the Palisade Bulldogs invade the Montrose softball diamond. The Bulldogs pushed across three runs in the third inning, added four more in the sixth and added a pair of runs in the seventh. The Red Hawks were shut out until the sixth inning when the Red Hawks plated four runs. The home team started a last ditch rally in the seventh but could only manage a single run making the final score Bulldogs 9, Red Hawks 5.

FISH HARVESTED FROM RIDGWAY RESERVOIR, SAN MIGUEL RIVER ARE SAFE FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION

Special to the Mirror

RIDGWAY— To address concerns of anglers, Colorado Parks and Wildlife recently submitted fish from Ridgway Reservoir and the San Miguel River to be analyzed for metal contaminations. The results showed fish from these bodies of water are safe to eat as long as people follow statewide fish consumption guidelines.

Public concern stemmed from historic mining activity along the Uncompahgre River valley as well as the San Miguel River. CPW aquatic biologist Eric Gardunio heard the longstanding rumors from anglers regarding consumption of fish in these areas and submitted several samples to a state toxicologist with the Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment (CDPHE) as well as CPW’s water quality monitoring section.

“One of my responsibilities is to set harvest regulations that are consistent with maintaining quality angling opportunities in our local fisheries,” Gardunio said. “Having anglers harvest fish can be a valuable management tool for our agency. It also offers anglers a sustainable source of protein that is healthy to eat. We appreciate our partnership with CDPHE that allows us to ensure that the fisheries where we allow harvest are producing fish that are safe to eat.”

CDPHE tested fish tissue for cadmium, copper, zinc and lead. CPW submitted Colorado River cutthroat trout, brown trout and rainbow trout fillets from the San Miguel River. From Ridgway Reservoir, yellow perch, rainbow trout, brown trout and smallmouth bass were sent for testing. “All of the fish collected in Ridgway Reservoir and on the San Miguel River that CDPHE tested for metals showed very low concentrations in the fish tissue or were non-detect,” said Ashley Rust, CPW Water Quality Monitoring and Assessment Specialist. “The fish are safe to eat, no concerns.”

The CDPHE Toxicology and Environmental Epidemiology Office compared the levels of metals found to health-protective screening levels.

“Based on our analysis, we recommend that people eating fish from these water bodies follow statewide fish consumption guidelines for mercury, which provide adequate protection from all heavy metals we have analyzed to date,” CDPHE said in a statement. CPW regularly monitors all fisheries based on a multitude of factors, including public concerns. Gardunio said he looks forward to working with local anglers and guides to share the positive news that fish from these water bodies are safe for harvest and consumption. “We appreciate the public’s concern over the potential health implications related to eating fish and are excited to announce that the fish from the San Miguel River and Ridgway Reservoir are safe to eat,” Gardunio said.

OPINION/EDITORIAL: LETTERS

OBSERVING NATIONAL HISPANIC HERITAGE MONTH: EVERY CORNER, EVERY AREA OF AMERICA IS RICH WITH HISPANICS

Dear Editor,

Each year, Americans observe National Hispanic Heritage Month from September 15 to October 15, by celebrating the histories, cultures and contributions of American citizens whose ancestors came legally from Spain, Mexico, the Caribbean and Central and South America. Some families were here before the United States of America.

Hispanic Heritage Month initially began as a weeklong celebration in 1968 under President Lyndon Johnson who, at the time said, "The people of Hispanic descent are the heirs of missionaries, captains, soldiers, and farmers who were motivated by a young spirit of adventure, Christians with a high moral standard, and a desire to settle freely in a free land."

I am proud to be called Hispanic although during the 1960s I preferred Chicano and still do to this day. During my life I have been called many things including some derogatory names for my race but I have been proud and it made me stronger. I am of mixed descent and proud of every ingredient, I am from the golden race. I am a product of legal immigrants five generations ago.

The observation began in 1968 as Hispanic Heritage Week under President Lyndon Johnson and was expanded by President Ronald Reagan in 1988 to cover a 30-day period. It was enacted into law on August 17, 1988.

The theme for 2023 is "Latinos : Driving prosperity, power, and progress in Ameri-

I would like to give some facts so you can see why we are so proud .

Hispanics have fought for America in every war and every battle since the Civil War. There is no count of the numbers of Hispanic warriors in the early wars but according to Wikipedia between 400,000 and 500,000 Hispanic Americans served in the armed forces in World War 2.. Hispanics not only served in ground and sea-bound combat units, they also distinguished themselves as fighter pilots and as bombardiers. In 1944, Hispanic aviators were sent to the Tuskegee Army Air Field in Tuskegee, Alabama, to train the famed Tuskegee Airmen of the 99th Fighter Squadron. Countless numbers of mine and my wife's family served in WW2, Korea and Vietnam.

More than 80,000 Hispanic-Americans served with distinction in Vietnam, from the Battle for Hue City to the Siege of Khe Sanh including my hero brother Fred.

More than 85,000 Hispanics have served in Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom. Number of Hispanic Americans serving on active duty in the Army increased from 3% in 1985 to 16% in 2019.

Hispanics in activism is another proud legacy. During the Chicano Movement (El Movimiento) of the 1960s and 1970s, Chicanos established a strong political presence and agenda in the United States through the leadership of Rodolfo "Corky" Gonzales, Cesar Chavez, and Dolores Huerta. I was an activist during those day and proud to be.

Hispanics as community leaders....teachers..... volunteers. Every corner and area of current America is rich with Hispanics, Including what is referred to as dreamers.

A Dreamer is a person who has lived in the US without official authorization since coming to the country as a minor, brought here by their parents illegally. People of this description who met certain conditions would be eligible for a special immigration status under federal legislation first proposed in 2001. I have encountered Dreamers in daily life as amazing accomplishers in anything they do. Most teachers will tell you that their Dreamers are top students. Dreamers serve in our military service to protect this country. My best friend David Padilla in Olathe is a good man, husband, father, business owner and volunteer. It is my personal opinion that Dreamers should be given a path to citizenship and I would love to help them achieve that.

With earnings of more than $1 trillion each year and tax contributions of more than $252 billion, Hispanics not only add significant value to the U.S. economy but they also support and help fund social services and infrastructure that ultimately benefit all Americans.

We will forever work to keep America free and moral.

God bless America

OPINION/EDITORIAL: LETTERS

FROM WHERE I SIT: ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

Editor:

There are a lot of great things about Montrose and Montrose County. And I think that we all can see many of them. Among the wonders of Montrose are the many parks with large grassy fields, gym sets for the kiddies with views of the most beautiful mountains in the world. Our sheriff and his deputies are superlative. Our citizens are mostly very polite when interacting with the public and our 'dog pound' is high on the 'good guy' list.

But, as with any endeavor there is seldom a shortfall of places, activities and policies that should be improved.

FROM 'WHERE I SIT' here are a few of them:

1. In my retirement I like to dine out frequently. We need a Health Department that CRACKS DOWN on unhealthy, even filthy, conditions at a few of our local restaurants. From what I see in some of the restrooms I would hesitate to visit their kitchens. We need more of a 'department' of health.
2. Businesses donate money for school supplies for our students. Congratulations to those businesses BUT THEY SHOULD NOT HAVE TO! Having been in the military for 20 years my two kids attended public schools in rich and poor states. Never did I have to buy learning materials. Before that, I went to school in Newark N.J. (of all places) and never bought so much as a pencil. I suggest that we reduce the administrative staff and have the schools pay the bill. That way all kids get the same treatment, well off or poor.

3. Squandering millions on the Rathbone Hotel (right next to the theater). This will use up the parking for the theater, a long-lived business in town and our only theater. The absurdity of this SQUANDERING is that the Rathbone should have been demolished and a multi-storied parking garage built to provide parking for the police station, theater, city offices etc. But apparently no one with a whit of sense even suggested that use of space and now over $3 million dollars have been flushed into a business that will fail and make citizens and employees visiting city offices walk long distances from parking to office. What a bungle this is already and the hotel is not yet functioning.

NOTE: I guess Bell and Bynum will have to build a large underground garage for this debacle that is underway?

4. We have a noise ordinance in Montrose and if I am not mistaken a pollution ordinance as well. I remember when it was passed several years ago. Neither of them are being enforced. Our 'main drags' are very noisy and often inundated with diesel smoke. A little enforcement with heavy fines collected might be a good idea. Some cars, pickups, semis and motorcycles are the problems. There are chemical and mechanical solutions to the diesel smoke---make the violators use them---they bought the vehicles now let them pay to keep them within the law.

5. The issue of library materials with explicit sexual content is embarrassing. From what I read about the stuff, it is PORN UNDER THE GUISE OF FREEDOM OF SPEECH. No it is PORN and if an adult were caught in possession thereof he'd be jailed for 'kiddie porn'. If parents are so bent on having their kids learn about this 'sexually explicit content' LET THEM TEACH IT TO THEIR OWN KIDS. Libraries and schools are not the places to peddle porn to our children---OR ADULTS FOR THAT MATTER.

6. And finally for today anyway, the papers are full of stuff about our impending water crisis. But I see nothing in those tomes about any conservation effort. All problems/no solutions! Finding and implementing solutions will take time while water flows away from us. Funding and enforcing conservation of this precious life giving fluid are perfect venues for City and County government. Water conservation is the kind of issue that governments are meant to solve. Let us substitute water conservation efforts for the wasting of millions of dollars on Mura projects like Colorado Outdoors, and establishing businesses in direct competition with the businesses already created by our neighbors already here.

As always when questioning the causes of poor streets, wasteful spending of public funds and crony capitalism, FOLLOW THE MONEY!

GMUG TO RELEASE LAND MANAGEMENT PLAN AND FINAL ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT

Special to the Mirror

DELTA— The Grand Mesa, Uncompahgre and Gunnison (GMUG) National Forests have released the draft record of decision for the revised land management plan and final environmental impact statement. This will begin a 60-day objection filing period.

“Releasing the draft record of decision for the revised plan is the culmination of several years effort and wouldn’t be possible without our cooperators, stakeholders and engaged members of the public,” said Chad Stewart, Forest Supervisor for the GMUG National Forests. “Community participation on our public lands management has helped produce an inclusive plan that focuses on forest restoration, resilience and climate adaptation.”

The revised plan details the desired conditions, standards, guidelines and objectives that will provide the foundation for future management activities across the forests for at least the next 15 years. Consistent with the agency’s Wildfire Crisis Strategy, the plan addresses drought, tree mortality and wildfire risk while amplifying forest restoration and resiliency through local and state partnerships. It’s estimated the plan will support 3,900 jobs and provide $125 million in labor income, add 46,000 acres of recommended wilderness and increase fuel treatment objectives by 60 percent.

GMUG Forest Planner Samantha Staley noted, “The planning team has been working steadily since 2018 to revise this forest plan. After we published the draft plan and received an enormous volume of quality public input, the planning team spent more than a year to thoroughly study and integrate that feedback as much as possible. We believe the plan and preferred alternative reflect the diversity of our communities’ input and interests.”

For draft record of decision, revised plan, environmental impact statement and other documents associated with this release, including interactive maps, webinar recordings and instructions for how to object or file as an interested person, as well as all past publications and other helpful resources, please visit the planning website: <https://www.fs.usda.gov/goto/gmug/forestplan>.

The objection process provides an opportunity for those who have participated in a prior formal public comment period for this plan revision effort to have their unresolved concerns reviewed before the Forest Supervisor issues a final decision. Individuals must have submitted substantive formal comments related to the plan revision during previous comment periods in order to object. Objection or resolution-centered meetings will be announced upon the determination of objection standing and information. The objection process also includes an interested persons format for those interested in how objections are resolved. Interested persons includes any party not named in the objection and individuals who submitted substantive formal comments demonstrating their participation in the planning process. For more information, please see legal notice and the draft Record of Decision.

The GMUG is hosting three public meetings to share information and provide orientation about the plan and the next steps. These are NOT Objection or Resolution meetings. Two virtual webinars and one in person meeting will be held: Virtual via ZOOM, Tuesday, Sept. 5, 2023, 10:00-11:30 a.m. Mountain time (US and Canada); <https://us02web.zoom.us/j/87453959663>, Meeting ID: 874 5395 9663, One tap mobile+12532158782,87453959663# US (Tacoma)+12532050468,87453959663# US

San Miguel County Noxious Weed of the Month

Tamarisk aka Salt Cedar grows along river corridors

Special to the Mirror

SAN MIGUEL COUNTY--- San Miguel County's Noxious Weed of the Month is the Tamarisk aka salt cedar, which in our county and throughout the American Southwest, is found growing along river corridors.

An introduced species, it was planted in the region to combat the effects of erosion.

This perennial shrub or small tree bears flowers that bloom from April through September and that range in color from pink to white. Its scale-like leaves are often encrusted with salt secretions. The leaves are similar in appearance to cedar or juniper leaves.

Tamarisk reproduces vigorously both vegetatively and by seed. Each plant produces up to 600,000 seeds.

To say tamarisk has become a scourge in riparian ecosystems is an understatement. Tamarisk is not a water-wise plant as it consumes massive amounts of water daily and in so doing lowers water tables. The plant creates large deposits of salt in the soil and is capable of spreading downstream 12 miles per year. Further, tamarisk degrades the value of wildlife habitat by out-competing native vegetation. Its severe impact along riparian corridors throughout the U.S. West is troubling. San Miguel County Vegetation Control & Management urges all county residents to manage any Tamarisk infestations with elimination in mind. Weed control is a community effort!

Please do your part.

For more information about Tamarisk and other noxious weeds in San Miguel County, please contact Julie Kolb, Manager of Vegetation Control and Management at juliek@sanmiguelcountyco.gov.

OPINION/EDITORIAL: LETTERS

ILLINOIS HOUSE BILL 3751 ALLOWS ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS TO BECOME POLICE OFFICERS

Editor;

It's getting almost impossible to keep up with the daily hate America rules, regulations and court decisions that Biden and his Democrat cults are imposing on Americans. Soon, AMERICANS COULD BE ARRESTED BY ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS in Illinois !! Yup, Illinois Democrat governor J.B. Pritzker recently signed a bill into law allowing illegal immigrants to become police officers in the state. Illinois House Bill 3751 allows illegal immigrants to become police officers in the state and citizenship will no longer be a requirement to serve as a police officer in Illinois starting January 1, 2024. House Bill 3751 further states, "An individual who is not a citizen but is legally authorized to work in the United States under federal law is authorized to apply for the position of police officer, subject to all requirements and limitations, OTHER THAN CITIZENSHIP to which OTHER APPLICANTS ARE SUBJECT." What about background checks that all police officers have to pass? That's not mentioned because most of their backgrounds cannot be verified, so they'll just hire them anyway-----terrorists, sex traffickers, child traffickers, drug cartels, and on down the list.

The law also states that non-U.S. citizens are required to be able to purchase, carry, and possess a firearm legally in order to apply to be a police officer in spite of a federal law prohibiting non-U.S. citizens from serving as police officers and deputies. Also, illegal immigrants under the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals will be eligible to apply for a position as a police officer. And with the love affair of the treasonous Democrat Mayorkis/Obama/Biden team alliance toward illegals, we won't know the criminal record of who is carrying a gun when stopped for a traffic violation. Imagine getting arrested by an illegal alien in this Democrat clown world of rabidness! Democrats need to get it figured out, do they want police or do they not? They have caused a horrific migration of American police officers into early retirement and just plain resignations. Of course this was their plan all along and it's right on schedule. Their colors are showing when they prefer illegals to patriotic citizens for police officers. And of course the recourse for "brutality" and "racism" and all the other accusations toward police officers won't be available in the world of illegal immigrant arrests. No, you'll just have to suck it up, keep quiet and save your energy with no Constitutional rights! This is just one of the steps in Democrats' plans for the destruction of our Constitution and America. So what's the next step.....a U.N. police force? Oh yeah, that's not a new question! It's been said before, Americans better wake up and quit voting for Democrats!! They're all connected at every level of government starting with city councils on up.

Everybody who voted for Biden should show their commitment and solidarity for their vote and take illegal immigrants into their homes. No? You brought them here by your vote!

COMMUNITY OBITUARIES

CAROLE ANN (HALE) SCHMALZ March 27, 1941 - August 23, 2023

CAROLE ANN (HALE) SCHMALZ departed this world on August 23, 2023. She was born on March 27, 1941, to Don L. Hale and Erma L. (Bronaugh) Hale. In her mother's words, "She was so cute with lots of dark hair...We were so proud of Carole that we even had 'discussions' about who got to carry her..."

They were a very happy family and soon added a sister, Francie, with whom she would share a room and a full and busy life. Carole was involved in Girl Scouts, band, swimming, plays and Rainbow Girls. As a family they went camping a lot, spent weekends waterskiing in the summer and snowmobiling in the winter. They also frequently traveled to Kansas to see family and Carole was especially close to her cousin Bonnie. She graduated from Montrose High School in 1959.

That same year she met and married Albert Schmalz. She was actually dating his cousin, but Al stole her away! They would go on to have four children: Cindy, Don, Steve and Brian. The family traditions of camping, waterskiing, snowmobiling and enjoying each other's company were always a high priority.

Carole loved to sew and, in fact, continued to make clothing all the way through multiple grandchildren. She also enjoyed many craft projects and almost always had a project going. We all have received many hand-made items over the years. She also gardened and painted oil paintings. She kept an immaculate house as her mother before her. She was close to her mother and cared for her for many years after the loss of her father in 1990.

During the years of raising her young family, she also worked outside of the home. Most of those years she worked in the Montrose School system libraries as an aide for almost 24 years. She retired in 1997. She loved that work and continued to shush people even at the most recent care home.

Carole has many lifelong friends who will especially mourn her passing. Many of them she grew up with. The friends went often to plays, craft shows, movies, lunches, open houses, and many get-togethers. She cherished them all. As couples, they would go out to dinner and then back to the house for cards, dominos and other games. She liked to organize gatherings and celebrations. One of her very favorite things was using her computer to make cards for everyone she knew. And she loved her pets!

She was proud of being a Colorado native and she spent most of her adult life in Montrose in the home she and Al had built. They spent a lot of time making the home into a place they loved. She was especially happy with her screened-in patio. They truly valued family and friends and visited them as much as they could. Camping together was also a favorite activity. Sadly, after over 52 years of marriage, she lost Al to lung cancer in 2012. She would struggle on, but life never would be the same.

Eventually, it became apparent that she could no longer live on her own. She moved to Colorado Springs in 2020 where her three sons and their families could be near. She adored seeing her great grandchildren and always had the biggest smiles for them. The long goodbye and watching her lose her memories was sometimes hard but there were still many moments of joy. She was especially pleased when her 'second sister' Millie visited her recently. Her family is grateful for the extended time we had with her.

Carole was preceded in death by her beloved parents and her sweetheart Albert. She was blessed in not remembering losing her mother in 2020 at the age of 101. She is survived by her sister Francie (Gary Barnes) and their two girls. Her children grew up strong, independent, and loving people, the product of a wonderful set of parents. Her children are Cindy (Pat Wigley) with three children and four grandchildren, Don (Caroline Coup) with one child and two grandchildren, Steve (Bobbie Hueser) with three children and two grandchildren, and Brian (Alisha Bristol) with four children.

COMMUNITY OBITUARIES

CHARLES ADAM BURCH

CHARLES ADAM BURCH passed, unexpectedly, on August 24, 2023 at the age of 52. Charlie was born in 1971 and raised on a ranch west of Olathe. He attended the Olathe schools and graduated high school in 1989. From early childhood he enjoyed taking things apart to see what made them work. This interest afforded him a lifetime of eclectic career moves involving machinery of all makes and sizes. He was naturally a good hand with horses and cattle. His artistic side shone through his carpentry. Refurbishing older homes, or new construction, his work was beautifully done. Charlie was energetic and willing to work. His quick wit and humor made him fun to work with and afforded him lasting friendships wherever he went. Surviving are five children: Kyle, Christopher and Devin McCaw, Trevor Franks and Carly Lee, also his beloved grandchildren and stepchildren. Also surviving are his father Ron Burch, sister Loretta Vickers and brothers Ivan Burch and Michael Burch and their families. As well as numerous friends and family members. He is predeceased by his grandparents Leonard and Helen Burch; mother Jackie White; and brother Allen Burch. A celebration of life will be held on September 5, at the Pea Green Community Hall at Banner Road & Hwy 348, west of Olathe. We'll gather at 1pm with a meal at 2pm. Condolences may be mailed in care of: Crippin Funeral Home at 802 E. Main, Montrose 81401.

He attended the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses in Montrose, Co. There he met and married Eileen Simmons and shortly thereafter moved to Odessa, Texas. Sam worked for Western Wireline a number of years and retired from there with awards. Sam lived a lifetime of service to his God Jehovah. He served a prison sentence for conscience objection on Mt Lemon, Az in the 50s. He served as an elder in both Montrose and Caprock congregations where he was Service and Accounts overseer. Interred in Grand View Cemetery, Montrose, Colorado He has especially been cherished by the Caprock Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses where he attended by zoom right up to his death. He wanted so much to walk into the New World with them! We are sure Sam will be there...

ART & SOL

GIVE PEACE A CHANCE

By Dr. Arlyn Macdonald

MONTROSE—Most often we want peace to come to us from the outside world. We want the other person to stop disturbing our peace. We want our family members to stop bickering and leave us alone. We want our young people to stop choosing violence so we can have safe schools and cities. We want the government to pass laws to make our country peaceful. We want all the other countries to stop fighting against each other so we can have a world of peace.

Seldom do we think about the place where real peace begins – within each of us. We are so busy being riled up by what someone else has said or what we believe that they believe that we forget we are not in peace. The first thing that happens in most situations is that we strike out, either with unkind words or physical violence without thinking. We want everyone to believe as we do and follow our rules, our logic, and our actions. Then, we assume the world will be perfect and at peace.

Where is the peace in these kinds of actions? There is no peace.

William Hazlitt said, “Those who are at war with others are not at peace with themselves.” We can’t force other people to be in peace, we can only change ourselves, and become an instrument for peace.

Finding peace within should be our focus, for as the Peace Pilgrim taught, “When you find peace within yourself, you become the kind of person who can be at peace with others.” How can we find peace within? First, by setting our intention to be a peaceful person. This is the framework for our lives – being a peaceful person.

Being a peaceful person includes stopping the war within yourself. Be mindful of the words you speak to yourself; make them peaceful, uplifting words filled with gratitude. Praise your accomplishments. Forgive yourself for past mistakes. Take a pause to return to peace.

Pausing for peace is a technique anyone can use. When you realize that you are thinking thoughts that are not peaceful, pause for peace, go back to center, and reframe the thoughts to ones of peace. When you feel your emotions getting riled up, pause for peace, ask yourself why you are moving away from peace, take time to discover the way back to peace, and follow it back to your Center of Peace.

When you want to lash out with words or get louder or shout to make your point, pause for peace before you speak. Is there a quieter, kinder, more peaceful way to communicate? How can you say what you want to say without starting an argument? Discussions can be exciting and inspiring. Arguments bring everyone down and often create violence. Pause for peace before you speak. Pausing for peace creates room for resolutions and problem solving.

People love to write letters to the editor, blogs, opinions on social media, and on other platforms that tear down, insult, create turmoil, and make the other person a scapegoat for frustration and blame. The Internet is helpful in so many ways, but it is also used to promote hatred and distrust and separation. None of which is a way to peace. Mahatma Gandhi said, “An eye for an eye only ends up making the whole world blind.”

Someone pointed out recently that when we engage in these kinds of unpeaceful thoughts and words and actions, we are adding to the hate and distrust of the collective thinking of the world. Did you realize that every thought you have, word you speak, and deed you accomplish, has an effect on the world? Are you adding to the world's problems or are you helping to make the world a better and more peaceful place in which to live?

And what are we teaching our children? Gandhi also said, "If we are to teach real peace in this world... we shall have to begin with the children." What are we teaching and modeling to our children. Love? Kindness to one another? The way to live in peace? Children are born with peace in their souls and then we shame them into losing it by teaching them about war. How sad for them and how sad for this world and the world to come.

But we can make a difference – NOW. By choosing to pause for peace and to re-frame our thoughts and words and actions toward peace, we can do our part to help change the world.

The more peace we send out to the world, the more peace we will have. Let's join with all those who stand together for peace.

"All we are saying is give peace a chance."
– John Lennon.

September is Peace Month with the International Day of Peace on September 21st.

MONTROSE -- My son and I were looking for a tasty bite the other night and of course, Ted's Steakhouse came to mind. I love going to Ted's because they have the tastiest "dirty" martini around. Vodka please, three olives and dirty. Yumm! Now, we weren't TOO hungry, so we decided to order from the appetizer menu. More than enough and always tasty. I ordered two; the Prime Rib Crostini: Toasted garlic-rubbed baguette slices with crumbled Bleu cheese, prime rib, red onion and a drizzle of au jus ($15), and he got an order of Bruschetta: Toasted baguette slices topped with tomato, basil, garlic and olive oil sprinkled with parmesan cheese ($10)- We both ordered a bowl of the house soup that night, a lobster bisque.

I ordered the rolled eggplant appetizer and it was so yummy and very filling. Love eggplant! Even though we ordered only appetizers for dinner, the waitress brought us each a small dessert sampler – a Ted's tradition. Not only that, we were seated by none other than Ted himself! GOLD! AND THE GOLD MINE THAT SAVED THE TOWN OF OURAY

By Kathryn R. Burke

UNITED STATES-Gold! Just the sound of the word inspired (and still inspires) Gold Fever. Which inevitably led to a...Gold Rush. At a time when the world's money supply was based on gold, the mineral provided economic stimulus far beyond the goldfields, feeding into local and wider economic booms. Gold Rushes helped spur waves of immigration that often led to the permanent settlement of new regions. Activities propelled by gold rushes define significant aspects of the culture of the North American Frontiers. Historians have written extensively about the mass migration, trade, colonization, and environmental history associated with gold rushes.

HISTORIC GOLD RUSHES

While we all know about the digging for gold in the San Juans, and the settlements that followed, we were neither the first nor the last place to attract hordes of hopeful gold hunters.

The first significant gold rush in the United States was near Charlotte, North Carolina in 1799, and it was responsible for setting the gold standard for our currency. A young boy playing in the river discovered a chunk of gold about the size of a shoe that weighed 17 pounds. A few years later, his father, John Reed, developed placer mining, then underground mining on the river and founded Reed's Gold Mine.

Reed, and others also successfully mining for gold, became wealthy and began to use gold as currency. To stabilize the country's economy, President Andrew Jackson authorized the creation of the

U.S. Mint. The Charlotte Mint was the first facility, and the Reed Gold Mine, the first gold mine in the country, became a National Historic Landmark.

Thirty years later, gold was discovered in Georgia, in the southern Appalachian Mountains. It was reported that the boomtown gold camps in the area supported 15,000 miners at its peak. The Philadelphia Mint received $1,098,900 in gold from Georgia between 1830 and 1837. When the veins petered out around 1840, boomtowns went bust and miners headed west.

Gold was discovered in the Sierra Nevada's in 1848, leading to the California Gold Rush, which lasted until 1855. Miners were followed by waves of settlers, who quickly populated the area. In 1850, California became the 31st state in the union. As more gold was found, and people were willing to brave the often unfriendly and uninhabitable areas of the west, gold hunters headed for British Columbia, Nevada, Idaho, Montana, eastern Oregon, western New Mexico Territory, Arizona, the Rocky Mountains in Colorado, and Alaska, where the last great gold rush, the Klondike Gold Rush took place in 1896-1899. The most successful North American Gold Rush was the Porcupine Gold Rush in Ontario, Canada. Peaking in the 1940s and 1950s, and still active today, gold deposits at that mine are one of the largest in the world.

In Colorado, deposits of gold and silver were discovered in 1860 along the Animas River, when Charles Baker and several other prospectors searched for the precious metals. Many prospectors left during the Civil War and did not return to the area until the early 1870's. The fact that the discoveries were on Ute Indian land, and the San Juans were mostly uninhabitable in winter, did not stop an influx of prospectors. Baker and his party went on to found Baker's Park, now Silverton, in San Juan County. Historians estimate the area's total production, through 1959 when the last mine closed, was between 874,000 and 1 million ounces.

OURAY

Prospectors first arrived in the Ouray area in 1861 and discovered placer gold in the canyon that would later be the site of the town of Ouray. Because of the isolation and ruggedness of the San Juan Mountains, combined with the ever-present danger of conflicts with the Ute tribes, the region developed slowly. The first gold mines were established at the Ouray site in 1875, and the initial settlement and mining district was named "Uncompahgre."

Several gold veins were established in the area with the most notable being the Una and Gertrude discovered in the Imogen Basin by George Barber and William Weston in 1877. At its height the region boasted 30 active mines. Gold fever had attracted thousands of miners, who were followed by families and support businesses.

The Town of Ouray was incorporated in 1876. By the early 1880s, Ouray had established itself as the second most prominent town in the San Juan region, behind Silverton. By 1890, when the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad reached Ouray, the town had over 2,500 residents. Both towns have many historic buildings remaining from the 1880s because they were built of brick and stone, rather than wood, thus avoiding the catastrophic fires that destroyed so many mining towns. Both communities also had volunteer fire departments. (Annual 4th of July contests between the fire departments is still prevalent today.)

Gold came first, then silver, but it was gold that kept the town going. The Bachelor Mine, on Gold Hill in the Paquin Mining District (just north of Ouray, above Dexter Creek) was established in 1884 by Charlie Armstrong, a prospector, and George Hurlburt, a surveyor. Their friend, J. Frank Sanders, a speculator, bought in. The three men loved a good time and were known to bet on almost anything—even which raindrop would be the first to make it to the bottom of a windowpane. Sander's gamble paid off when the gold mine also hit a huge silver vein.

For nearly a century, the Bachelor was one of the region's strongest and most reliable producers. During its heyday, ore worth $200 to $500 a ton shipped out from the Bachelor Switch, a railroad siding below the mine. A town called Ash sprang up near the main portal. It got its name from the first letters of the last names of the original owners: Armstrong, Sanders, and Hurlburt. Ash is gone now, but the town's remains can still be seen along Red Canyon Creek, now called Dexter Creek.

BOOM TO BUST, THE SILVER PANIC OF 1893

Gold remained the currency basis until the Bland-Alison Act of 1878, which established silver as the standard basis. This was good for Colorado, where silver production through the 1880s remained steady at above 10 million ounces. The state's gold production was only one third as valuable (or less).

But the glut in the silver market caused silver's value to drop 25 percent near the end of the decade. Worried mine owners appealed to Congress for help. The result was the Sherman Silver Purchase Act of 1890, requiring the government to buy 4.5 million ounces of silver each month. This increased the government's silver purchase by 50 percent and was a boon to Colorado and other silver-mining states.

Their request backfired. Colorado's mines were going strong, but the nation was on the brink of economic collapse, partly due to the draining of gold in the US treasury from the Silver Purchase Act, compounded by years of agricultural depression (partly caused by the McKinley Tariff act that same year, 1890, which drove up prices for farm equipment and decreased prices for agricultural products). Seeking to stimulate the national economy, President Grover Cleveland and Congress repealed the Sherman Silver Purchase Act in October 1893, causing what became known as the Silver Panic of 1893. Overnight, the value of silver dropped by about one-third. The repeal devastated Colorado. Altogether, more than 9,500 jobs dried up in mining towns across the state. The Panic of 1893 produced the worst economic depression in US history to that point. The effects of the economic depression caused by the Panic of 1893 did not fade until 1897.

GOLD SAVED OURAY

Like many prosperous mining cities in Colorado, Ouray hit hard times after the repeal of the Sherman Silver Purchase Act. Several prominent businesses closed, including the Bank of Ouray. Many men were out of work as many of the local silver mines halted production.

But mining for gold continued and Ouray survived largely because of it. Although gold had first been discovered north of Ouray, those veins had mostly dried up. The Yankee Girl Mine, south of town, was one of the earliest gold mines established in Ouray. The mine was very productive producing over $8 million worth of gold.

Meanwhile, large quantities of gold had been discovered in the Paquin Mining District northeast of town. The area became known as the "Gold Belt." (Also the name of an infamous bar and bordello in town.) Thanks to mines like the American Nettie, Bachelor, and Wedge mines, by 1895, Ouray began to recover. Many silver mines in nearby districts had some gold content, helping them operate profitably even when silver prices were low.

It also helped that two of the richest mines in the West were nearby: the Revenue and Camp Bird. These mines employed hundreds of men each and kept Ouray humming as a supply center and rail hub for the mountain operations.

In 1897, Walsh acquired the Una and Gertrude Veins and later established the Camp Bird Mine. It was soon turning out $5,000 a day (equivalent to $176,000 in 2022). Wash built a twenty-stamp mill for the mine and donated over $30,000 for the construction of the new City Hall and Library building. He also built a library in Silverton and bought the Hope Diamond for his daughter, now part of a collection at the Smithsonian. Walsh sold the mine to the Camp Bird Limited in 1902. The Mine had produced over a million ounces of gold by 1916.

By 1900, Ouray's population had been reduced to 2,196 residents. While this figure reflected some of the economic hard times related to the decline in the silver industry, the reduction in population was far less than seen in mining towns of other districts. Gold saved Ouray. Its economy did not depend on silver, so it continued to prosper.

In the 1920s, a new tunnel at the Bachelor mine, financed by investors from Syracuse, N.Y., was driven to access the Bachelor's old workings from below. Dubbed the Syracuse, the Mine was renamed the Bachelor Syracuse. It is that tunnel that is open to mine tour visitors, who can take a tour today 1,500 feet into Gold Mountain. The Bachelor Syracuse Mine Tour looks and feels like the real thing—because it is the real thing.
